LAB 1: SHORT FILM

WFI uses film as a tool to teach life skills, including reading, writing, math, science and storytelling, as well as business, communication, leadership and art skills.

This 10-month introductory program offers instruction and hands-on experience in the core aspects of filmmaking: screenwriting, producing, directing, cinematography, editing, pre and post production, composing and marketing. This introductory program is open to individuals with little to no experience.

WFI provides an opportunity for students to thrive in a 360-degree learning environment. Along with personal growth, students will develop the skills for entry-level positions in all areas of film and television production.

Each student's unique and creative vision will take shape under the guidance of senior professional artists as they work towards writing and directing a short film, developing a story idea for a future project, and creating an outline/treatment for a feature film of their conception.

Students are trained by our experienced and award-winning faculty, and industry professional mentors. This Lab is designed to take you through the filmmaking process, consisting of Development, Pre-Production, Production, Post Production, and finally, Sales and Distribution. Students will be able to write and direct their own short film. This short film will be your calling card, as it will introduce you and your work to the film industry.

Upon completion, students will earn the following Brock University credits:

- ✓ Screenwriting: Writing for the Movies (FLIC 2F00)
- ✓ Directing / Cinematography: Shaping the Vision (FLIC 2F01)
- ✓ Editing & Soundtrack (Composing): Post-Production (FLIC 2F02)
- ✓ Pre-Production & Production: Making a Motion Picture (FLIC 3F00)
- ✓ Producing & Marketing: The Business of Film (FLIC 3F01)
